Gajah Gallery presents GG-ABHK2020, a blockbuster group exhibition showcasing brand new works from Southeast Asia's most iconic artists.

We are proud to announce a major exhibition opening following the cancellation of Art Basel Hong Kong 2020. In lieu of this signal fair, we will be staging our own Basel-worthy show at our Singapore space, bringing together several renowned artists of Southeast Asia and showcasing their unique practices in a grand presentation of the very best of contemporary art.

For this monumental exhibition, we are humbly joined by an awe-inspiring line up of artists from and around Southeast Asia. We are thrilled to present works by Ashley Bickerton (USA), Erizal As (Indonesia), Jigger Cruz (Philippines), Li Jin (China), Mahalakshmi Kannappan (India/Singapore), Rudi Mantofani (Indonesia), Savanhday Vongpoothorn (Laos/Australia), Suzann Victor (Singapore/Australia), Uji “Hahan” Handoko (Indonesia), and Yunizar (Indonesia) for our main exhibition, with a spotlight on I GAK Murniasih (Indonesia), and a separate showcase with works by Anis Kurniasih (Indonesia), Dini Nur Aghnia (Indonesia), Fika Ria Santika (Indonesia), and Kara Inez (Malaysia).

In light of the COVID-19 pandemic, we are introducing precautionary measures by changing our opening times, limiting the number and flow of guests, and cancelling some activities. Your safety and health are of the utmost priority to us.

Nonetheless, we hope to see you at the Gallery, as appreciating art can oftentimes be a source of consolation and a much-needed pause from the world amidst uncertain, challenging times.

KABINETT

Elaborately staged and poised to be the art event of the season, this exhibition will also include a special KABINETT section featuring a curated selection of works by celebrated Balinese artist I GAK Murniasih (Murni). Born in Tabanan Bali, Murni's prolific artistic career was cut short due to her illness and subsequent death in 2006. Often labelled as disturbing and deeply biographical, her works still manage to evoke humor and pathos that we can see throughout her practice- one that was iconic in Southeast Asia for her bold depictions of female sexuality and themes of trauma and death. Murni's groundbreaking watershed works will be on show for the duration of the exhibition.

This section features new works by these four artists as a display of the beautiful vibrancy and novelty in Southeast Asian art, and will be shown in a separate exhibition space where the works can be duly admired in a more contemporary setting.

ABOUT THE ARTISTS

GG-ABHK2020

Ashley Bickerton is among the most well-known expatriate artists, residing in Bali for almost 25 years. His work is in the collections of the Museum of Modern Art, The Guggenheim and the Whitney Museum in New York, the Tate Gallery in London and the Stedelijk Museum in Amsterdam. Ashley is known for his poignant social commentaries, which draw from an anthropological perspective of looking at consumerism, the cross-pollination of culture and the widespread decay of humanistic values.

Erizal As is one of the fastest emerging artists in Indonesian contemporary art, drawing the attention of regional and international collectors. His latest exhibition 'Formless Existence' poses a shift in the artist's perspective, portraying the defiance of paint when seen through the lens of visual aesthetics, a metaphorical manifestation of his personal views about governance and righteousness.

Jigger Cruz explores the primitive memory of the figurative in contemporary painting. His artistic approach plays with ideas of defacement and vandalization. The paintings rework many of the stylistic quirks and formal concerns of classical painting, employing their basic composition and approximating their processes.

Li Jin is one of China's foremost contemporary artists, known for his lighthearted approach to the otherwise stoic field of Chinese ink painting. His works illustrate a philosophy of liberation and contentment, breaking with the archetypal formal subject matter associated with traditional ink. The characters that appear in his paintings are drawn from his daily life and his travels.

Mahalakshmi Kannappan is an emerging Singapore-based artist born in India. As a diasporic individual, she often finds herself caught between two very different cultures with distinct beliefs and mindsets. The decisions as to what to adopt and why an ongoing struggle are she addresses and gives form through her work.

Rudi Mantofani is an Indonesian contemporary artist known to incorporate the unexpected in his work. He aims to challenge the intellect by instilling questions in the viewer, demanding their examination and interpretation. In the form of both painting and sculpture, he usually transforms the iconography of ordinary objects and landscapes into puzzling visual riddles. This overturning of reality is done with daring visual ploys such as flattening the pictorial space through heavy repetitions or creating illusions of three-dimensionality.

Suzann Victor is Singapore's most notable female contemporary artist, known for her monumental public artworks, performances and kinetic installations. Her recent solo show, See Like a Heretic, saw her embarking on an archaeological process to locate the point before which ready-made iconography was converted into commodities; transmuting the process of sandblasting into a ritualistic baptism.

Uji 'Hahan' Handoko blurs the point of contact that exists between urbanization and agrarianism, the East and the West, the local and the global. He has been a finalist for the Sovereign Art Prize in 2008, and has participated in residencies and shows across Indonesia, Korea, Italy and Cuba.

Yunizar continually proves his massive appeal to international audiences, enchanting collectors and curators all over the world, his work being collected by various major public and private collections, including the Long Museum, China. His work reflects an ideal of imaginative and authentic expression, using a combination of primitive markings and elementary forms to create a universal visual language.

KABINETT ARTIST SPOTLIGHT

I Gak Murniasih exhibited the ordinary world in an extraordinary way, with her work often labelled as disturbing and deeply biographical, yet also filled with a sense of humor and pathos. Mostly self-taught, Murni developed her own style based on intuition, which alongside her willingness to tackle difficult subject matter such as pleasure and sexuality has marked her as one of the most important contemporary women artists in Indonesia.

DISCOVERIES ARTISTS

Guided by the philosophy that humans and the environment are profoundly interdependent, Anis Kurniasih is drawn to the details and minutiae of nature. She employs drawing techniques to imitate these repetitive patterns in her work, seeing her practice as a way to understand crucial processes in life.

Harking back the impressionist approach of capturing ephemeral landscapes, Dini Nur Aghnia expresses the natural environment she sees every day in a fresh, evocative way—recreating them through the organic material of clay. Her artistic practice moves her to become fully absorbed in the daily glories in her surrounding landscapes, which eternally change depending on the time of day.

Fika Ria Santika plays with materiality to open up multidimensional ways of understanding the places from which she roots. Perpetually inspired by nature and her surrounding environment, much of her innate inclination comes from her Minangkabau culture, wherein philosophies of nature are deeply ingrained. Yet, Fika paves her own path by engaging with the varied materials in her artistic process as a means to rediscover her identity, which continues to evolve and expand.

Kara Inez is a Malaysian artist based in Singapore who draws from her personal experiences to explore issues surrounding the female body and mental health through the mediums of performance art and sculpture. Utilizing abject materials such as hair and skin, her works invoke the feeling of disgust as a means to challenge the social constructs set in place surrounding these suppressed topics.
